

> Why is it important?

Living with a long term health condition can be stressful. You might be anxious about your future or worried about managing day to day tasks. Friends and family can find it difficult to understand what you're coping with and this may make you feel isolated. Learning how to look after your emotional wellbeing and finding ways to manage your mood is an important part of self care. We've put together this list of online resources to help you. If feelings of low mood or anxiety persist, contact your GP.

Tips for managing your emotional wellbeing

- Get a good night's sleep – lack of sleep can make us feel irritable, low and overwhelmed.
- Eat a well balanced diet – our brains need vitamins, minerals and energy to help us feel at our best.
- Keep physically active – evidence shows that exercise can boost our self-esteem, improve our wellbeing and protect us from anxiety and depression.
- Avoid alcohol and caffeine – alcohol is classed as a 'strong depressant' and can lower your mood and excess caffeine can contribute to feelings of anxiety.
- Stop smoking - evidence suggests the beneficial effect of stopping smoking on symptoms of anxiety and depression can equal that of taking antidepressants.
- Relax– make sure you find time to do activities that help you relax such as listening to music or having a warm bath. Evidence suggests that techniques such as mindfulness and meditation can help to improve our emotional wellbeing.
