

> Why is it important?

If you are living with a long term health condition eating a well balanced diet and maintaining a healthy weight will help you manage your symptoms.

> How can it help?

- Type 2 diabetes

Maintaining a healthy weight and eating a diet that's low in saturated fats and high in fibre can help reduce your risk of developing type 2 diabetes and help you manage the condition if you have already been diagnosed.

- Heart Health

A diet rich in fruits, vegetables, whole grains and low fat dairy and low in salt can help to reduce your risk of heart disease and maintain healthy blood pressure and cholesterol levels.

- Arthritis

Maintaining a healthy weight helps reduce the strain on your joints.

- Osteoporosis

A diet rich in calcium keeps your teeth and bones strong and can help to reduce bone loss that occurs with ageing.

- Emotional wellbeing

Eating a nutritious diet can help us maintain our emotional wellbeing. In order to concentrate and focus our brain needs energy and this comes from the food we eat. If our diet is lacking in vitamins and minerals this can affect how we feel. For example, if we don't have enough iron in our diet we can feel tired and weak.

- Pain management

It's important for people experiencing chronic pain to eat a healthy, balanced diet. Our nervous system is able to dampen pain via our body's own pain relieving substance, endorphins. To function properly our nervous system needs certain nutrients.
